

Article Overview

Key manufacturers of power distribution boxes in El Salvador include MADESA, Celasa, and other certified local suppliers offering standard-compliant PDUs and electrical panels.

Major Manufacturers and Suppliers

MADESA is a prominent supplier of electrical materials in El Salvador, providing a wide range of power distribution equipment for residential, commercial, and industrial projects. They focus on quality and technological adaptation, offering products that meet local standards for electrical installations (MADESA website) . Celasa specializes in electrical protection devices and distribution panels compatible with THQL/BR/Twin breakers, supporting 1-phase systems from 2 to 12 circuits. They provide expert guidance and high-quality materials for various electrical projects, making them a leading distributor in the country (Celasa website) . Other Suppliers include general power distribution equipment manufacturers and exporters listed on platforms like Machineequipments, which offer bulk and custom solutions for PDUs and distribution boxes in El Salvador. These suppliers cater to industrial, commercial, and data center applications, ensuring compliance with local standards (Machineequipments website) .

Product Types and Standards

- o Surface-mount and rack-mount PDUs for server rooms and data centers
- o Multiple-outlet power strips for standard and industrial applications
- o Circuit breaker panels compatible with local breaker types (THQL/BR/Twin)
- o Single-phase and multi-phase distribution boxes for residential and commercial use These products are manufactured according to El Salvadoran electrical standards and often carry agency approvals to ensure safety and reliability (International Config website) .

How to Procure

- o Visit manufacturer websites to download catalogs and technical specifications
- o Contact suppliers directly via email or phone for bulk orders or custom configurations
- o Check for local distributors to obtain products with immediate availability and technical support By sourcing from these certified manufacturers, you can ensure that your power distribution boxes meet national safety standards and are suitable for your specific electrical project requirements.
